

1. About IUJ

The International University of Japan (IUJ) was created in 1982, as Japan's first graduate-school-only university, by bold leaders with a unique vision representing business, government and world organizations. IUJ equips students with interdisciplinary skills covering politics, economics and management, as well as historical and cultural perspectives to take on current global issues from their chosen profession. Offering an English-only curriculum to students from 50+ countries taught by a highly qualified faculty, IUJ boasts seven master's level degrees in two graduate schools.

IUJ has Global Partnerships with 55 major Japanese companies. We will deepen collaboration with Japanese companies and extend it to address the needs of Africa, a continent Japanese company's view as a promising market, following Asia. HR development projects led by the Japanese government, such as the African Business Education Initiative for Youth (ABE Initiative), are also emphasizing support for Japanese companies, rather than the conventional approach to HR development in developing countries. This innovative business-oriented approach will shape IUJ's efforts to develop human resources in Africa.

IUJ is already a powerful brand in Asia. Over the next 10 years, we will strive to establish the IUJ brand in Africa as part of our ambitious effort to powerfully support Japanese economic progress through an innovative approach to education. Ghana, with almost 50 alumni, is the epicenter of IUJ's growing alumni network in Africa, which already comprises more than 160 IUJ graduates.

Similar to the situation in Asia, most IUJ alumni in Africa are elite bureaucrats or teaching staff at leading local universities. Capitalizing on this alumni network, we will implement strategic initiatives in Africa based on the recognition that the continent is of growing importance to Japan.
