

Regulations for Mission of the Graduate Schools at International University of Japan (IUJ) (Translation)

Enacted Mar.31, 2008

Revised Sep. 1, 2015

Revised Nov. 1, 2017

(Objectives)

Article 1. The objective of these regulations are to designate matters regarding mission on nurturing human resources and others on education and research as stated in article 2-2-1 of the Graduate School Regulations, International University of Japan.

(Mission of Graduate School of International Relations)

Article 2-1. The Graduate School of International Relations (hereafter referred to as “GSIR”) is dedicated to developing professionals by educating students towards acquiring a long-term vision of the rapidly changing world, appreciating diverse perspectives in global and local contexts, and enhancing their analytical skills and problem-solving capabilities in a wide range of contemporary in a wide range of contemporary international affairs. All courses are conducted in English.

2-2 The Doctoral Course of GSIR is dedicated to developing human resources by educating students toward acquiring a long-term vision of the rapidly changing world, appreciating diverse perspectives in global contexts, and enhancing their high-level research ability required for conducting research in a wide range of contemporary international affairs as an independent researcher or required for other highly specialized professionals with a well-rounded scholarship that builds the foundation for the research ability. All courses are conducted in English.

(Mission of Graduate School of International Management)

Article 3. The Graduate School of International Management (hereafter referred to as “GSIM”) is dedicated to developing “wise” (i.e., socially responsible) individuals for global business and social leadership, with an emphasis on serving the emerging countries.

The two key components of GSIM mission are nurturing Social Responsibility (SR) and Global Business (GB), which the school aims to achieve and operationalize through its innovative policies, recruitment strategies, placement efforts, teaching, research, and service strategies.

SR in GSIM mission derives from its belief that GSIM and its graduates should not only be compelled by financial benefits but also by their sense of duty to social causes. At GSIM, we mainly focus on the following aims in SR:

- To enhance the social responsibility policies of GSIM stakeholders, including Japanese corporations, Japanese government organizations, and local community

- To educate students to be socially responsible leaders, stressing the need of students from emerging countries in Asia and Africa.

GB focuses on the needs surrounding all the constituencies that GSIM serves. For students and faculty, it is vital to keep abreast of the ever-changing dynamics of global business, supported by solid theoretical and practical bases, in order to advance their own careers and professionalism. For other stakeholders, which include Japanese corporations and government organizations, it is vital that GSIM nurtures students who can blend their business objectives with a sense of social leadership because such organizations expect this balanced outcome.

At GSIM, we mainly focus on the following aims in GB:

- To instill global mindedness in students, including those from emerging countries in Asia and Africa.
- To help students understand the business and cultures of other countries and serve their home countries by contributing to their development, following graduation
- To help Japanese corporations, Japanese government organizations, local SMEs, and other stakeholders (e.g. foreign entities operating in Japan) to become globalized with a sense of social responsibility.

Also, all courses are conducted in English.

ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS

These regulations shall be made effective from March 31, 2008.

ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS

These regulations shall be made effective from September 1, 2015.

ADDITIONAL REGULATIONS

These regulations shall be made effective from November 1, 2017.