

Course ID Number: ADC6990

Course Title: Global Issues: UNU Global Seminar

No. of Credits: 1

Graduate School of International Relations
International University of Japan

Term: Fall 2009

Instructor: John B. Welfield
E-mail: ofcgsir@iuj.ac.jp
Office: 114
Phone: 401

Course Introduction

This course examines selected issues in international relations by participating in the UNU Global Seminar (Shonan Session) sponsored by the United Nations University and organized by other cooperating universities including IUJ. Each year, we invite UN officials, specialists and scholars, and have intensive discussions with them and other participants in English.

ADC6990 Global Issues: UNU Global Seminar

Professor John Welfield

Fall Term 2009

Course Description

This course examines selected issues in international relations by participating in the UNU Global Seminar (Shonan Session) sponsored by the United Nations University and organized by other cooperating universities including IUJ. Each year, we invite UN officials, specialists and scholars, and have intensive discussions with them and other participants in English.

Credit requirements and Assessment

The IUJ students who want to obtain a credit need to participate in and complete the UNU Global Seminar, to register for this course, and to write a research paper approximately 20-25 page typed, whose topic or title is decided in consultation with the instructor in the fall term. Assessment is based on the research paper.

Lecture Schedule

As to the schedule and application requirements for the UNU Seminar 2009, please check the brochure and the application information provided separately. After the UNU Seminar, we will have a follow up session in the first week of the fall term.